Reasons for Allowance

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The present invention is directed to a method of providing the physiological effect of wild-type p53 protein to a cell, comprising the steps of:

providing to a cell a compound which comprises a single-stranded, linear or circular, oligonucleotide or oligonucleotide analogs, wherein the compound comprises the monomer sequence RRRCWWGYYY or the complement thereof, wherein the compound is able to complex specifically with a p53-specific binding site, whereby the physiological effect of wild-type p53 protein is provided.

No prior art of record either teaches or suggests the interaction of a cell with a compound comprising the monomer sequence RRRCWWGYYY or the complement thereof, wherein the compound is able to complex specifically with a p53-specific binding site of the cell.

In view of the absence of either teaching or suggestion of such a method of providing the physiological effect of wild-type p53 protein to a cell, comprising the steps of:

providing to a cell a compound which comprises a single-stranded, linear or circular, oligonucleotide or oligonucleotide analogs, wherein the compound comprises the monomer sequence RRRCWWGYYY or the complement thereof, wherein the compound is able to complex specifically with a p53-specific binding site, whereby the physiological effect of wild-type p53 protein is provided, the present invention is novel and non-obvious.
